

PACIFIC CLUB IS SCENE OF GAYETY

Prominent Society and Service Folk Gather at One of Season's Most Notable and Striking Functions — Beautiful Gowns Displayed.

HONOLULU men have won their honors as hosts. The most accomplished hostess could not have been more cordial in her hospitality than members of the Pacific Club last evening when friends were entertained at a ball, given at their popular and exclusive club house on Alakea street. They proved themselves delightful hosts, unexpectedly developing a sense of the care of the guests that is usually left for a hostess—for at home affairs they are always agreeable but negative, and to wives or feminine assistants falls the duty of properly arranging places at dinners, or noting that no one is left stranded, alone, at a tea or dance. But last night's ball proved what men may do, if they will, for the dance was a success in every way. Each member proved a gracious host, and was solicitous for the comfort and pleasure of the guests. The president of the club, ex-Governor George Carter, Mrs. Carter, General and Mrs. Macomb and Admiral and Mrs. Cowles received the guests. Mr. Harry Macfarlane, Mr. Willard Brown and Mr. Bruce Cartwright, Jr., acting as masters of ceremonies, ushering the guests into the presence of the receiving party, and making introductions when they were necessary. In fact this trio of club men were on the entertainment committee, and much credit is due them for the brilliancy of the affair. The interior of the club house was festooned with tropical foliage, malle and smilax being extensively used. The numerous potted palms made an effective background for the smart and chic toilettes that were worn by the fair sex. Due to lack of space they can not be described but were bewilderingly beautiful, for the spring fashions—so far as women's costumes could make it so—have been of barbaric splendor, with the jeweled and gold embroidered fabrics that are so oriental in their appearance. The full Fifth Cavalry band of twenty-six pieces furnished the music and deux temps and waltzes were danced until a late hour. Close onto midnight a hot supper was served and the epicurean skill of the steward was displayed for a delicious supper was served in the dining room, at small tables bedecked with roses. Among those present were: Miss H. Achilles, Mr. D. W. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Bottomley, Miss Berger, Miss M. Bliven, Mr. G. I. Brown, Mr. F. A. Hatchell, Mr. Percy T. Clegg, Mr. R. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. R. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chillingworth, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cartwright, Jr., Miss Beatrice Castle, avenue, became the bride of John Bernard Macgarvey. There were between fifty and sixty invited friends and relatives present. Cannon Ault officiated.

The bride was given into the keeping of the groom by her father, while Mrs. W. R. Foster attended the bride as matron of honor. After the ceremony the bride and groom walked down the aisle over a bed of roses that were scattered before them by Herbert Foster and Frankie Day, pages.

The bride wore a beautiful white silk gown en train trimmed with satin and lace with pearl garniture. A bride's veil was worn, caught up with lilies of the valley, and she carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. Mrs. Foster, as matron of honor, wore a light silk gown, becomingly trimmed, with a cap of pink tulle trimmed with pink clover blossoms and carried a bouquet of pink carnations tied with a pink gauze.

After the ceremony all of the guests were taken to the home of the bride's parents on Kalahele avenue, where a reception was held. The happy couple received the congratulations of the host of friends while standing under a canopy of green and white. The house was prettily decorated in green, red and white for the occasion. After the good wishes had been expressed refreshments were the order of the day. The bride's cake, which weighed seventeen pounds, was cut and all present received a piece to place under the pillow.

The presents were numerous and beautiful, consisting of cut glass, silverware, furniture, dishes and linen, and certainly emphasized the esteem in which the young couple are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Macgarvey will spend a two weeks' honeymoon at Mr. Lee's place in Kailua valley, after which they will reside in the Dwy family home for some time while Mr. and Mrs. Day are spending a vacation on the coast.

Among those attending the ceremony and reception were: Mr. and Mrs. Ormiston, Mr. and Mrs. T. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Schoening, Mr. and Mrs. Wertz, Mr. and Mrs. Greig, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. W. Ellerbrook, Miss Geneva Hiebs, Mrs. Tinker, the misses Tinker (3), Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. McDowell, Mrs. Bennett, Mr. Clyde Wright, Mr. F. Wint and others.

Mrs. James Hough's Dinner.
Quantities of American Beauty roses were used in the ornamentation of the dinner table when Mrs. James Hough of Stockton, California, entertained at the Seaside Hotel Thursday evening. The dinner favors, apples and oranges, were especially unique. These mechanical devices had a tiny thread attached to them. On pulling the thread there was a phosphorescent display, then a loud report, followed by the bursting open of the fruit and a miniature toy was disclosed.

Margarey-Day Wedding.
A pretty June wedding was celebrated at St. Andrew's Cathedral last Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, when Ethel Mary Iwahani Day, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turnbull Day, of Kalahele closed. Of course this clever contrivance added to the merriment of the dinner and to the entertainment of the guests. Each of the ten plates were marked by a tiny Dresden flower pot filled with a growing American Beauty rose. After dinner, Mrs. Hough and her assembled guests attended the army hop at the Outrigger Club. Among those present were Mrs. James Hough, Captain and Mrs. Clifton Carter, Mrs. Clegg, Miss Helen Hough, Miss Janette Hough, Mr. Frank Clegg, Lieut. Vaughn and Mr. Percy Clegg.

Mrs. Putnam's Bridge Party.

The Commandant's beautiful home at Fort De Russay was the scene of much gaiety and merriment Wednesday afternoon, when Mrs. Putnam entertained at bridge. With the exception of two or three, the invited guests were service folk. The tables were arranged in the drawing room and on the lanai overlooking the sea. Japanese prints, handsomely framed, were awarded at each table as prizes. There were some very excellent scores, the highest bridge being Mrs. Neville, Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Coghlan and Mrs. Arthur Maris.

The score cards were exceptionally pretty, depicting Japanese figures in a setting of old Japan. The dainty cards were tied with yellow, satin ribbon. In fact the entire color scheme was in yellow, coral and beige, the favored flower that formed the floral adornment. At half-past four o'clock delicious refreshments were served on the lanai at small tables. The tea, cakes, etc., were all in yellow. Among those who participated in this delightful affair were Mrs. Burnham, Mrs. Neville, Mrs. Arthur Maris, Mrs. Pratt, Mrs. Ward, Mrs. Pardee, Mrs. Wall, Mrs. Roy, Francis Smith, Mrs. Johnston of Denver, Mrs. Clifton Carter, Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Tuttle, Mrs. Wilcox, Miss Cutman, Miss Zigler, Mrs. Watkins, Mrs. Edwards, Miss Bonham, Mrs. Alexander Davis, Mrs. Cochran, and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilder's Dinner.

The dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Gertrude Wilder Thursday evening proved an enjoyable affair. Five Bonheur Indian baskets filled with golden shavings graced the table; candleabra ornamented with yellow silk shades were placed on the circular board; tall slender vases of Bohemian were filled with the golden shavings and placed between the baskets and candleabra, the general effect of which was remarkably artistic. Among Mr. and Mrs. Wilder's guests were Senator and Mrs. Eric Kunda, Doctor and Mrs. James Judd, and others.

Mrs. Wilcox's Card Party.

A number of elaborate affairs have been given this week by the Service people. None of the functions on the Social Calendar have proved more enjoyable than the card party given by Mrs. Wilcox, wife of Lieut. Wilcox. The entertainment was given Tuesday afternoon at the Hotel Courtland. The young hostess received her guests in the drawing room, which was adorned with purple asters and maidenhair fern. The dining room was exquisitely decorated with daisies and potted palms. In this tropical bower the card tables were placed, and later dainty viands and tea were served from a polished oval table ornamented with a fancy basket of Marguerites. The prizes were beautiful silk party bags. Mrs. Cochran won the prize at the heart table. Mrs. Putnam and Miss Cutman were the highest bridge players. Those who attended this delightful affair were Mrs. Walter Cowles, Mrs. Neville, Mrs. Arthur Maris, Mrs. John Palmer, Mrs. Chapman, Mrs. Pardee, Mrs. Roy Smith, Miss Cutman, Mrs. Ward, Mrs. Putnam, Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Shedy, Mrs. Winters, Mrs. Philip Frear, Mrs. Nelson Baker Lausung, Miss Edith Cowles, Mrs. Cochran, Mrs. F. McStocker, Mrs. Hepburn, Miss Cooper, Miss Julie McStocker, Mrs. Pratt, Miss Lydia McStocker, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Johnson, and others.

Mrs. Prosser's Luncheon.

Hand-painted place cards in tints of mauve designated the eight places at the luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. M. F. Prosser. The motif for this delightful affair was Mrs. Philip Wrightson, wife of Lieut. Wrightson of the U. S. Army. The table was banked with violets and maidenhair fern. The floral adornment was artistic and beautiful. Among the guests were Mrs. Philip Wrightson, Mrs. Kingsbury, Mrs. Clifton Ballentyne, Mrs. Haneberg, Mrs. L. Tenney, Peck, Mrs. Arthur Maris and Mrs. Irwin James Shepherd.

Mrs. R. A. Jordan's Tea.

An informal 4 o'clock tea will be given Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Robert Jordan. Mrs. Jordan's valley home is an ideal place for any social function, and the hostess and her two daughters are famed for their enjoyable social functions, most of their affairs being informal, thus giving additional enjoyment. The invitations for next week's affair were issued by telephone. The invitational list is not large, as sixteen guests have been invited.

Lieutenant Burrell's Dinner.

Red and green formed the color scheme for the dinner that was given at the Alexander Young Hotel by Lieutenant G. S. Burrell Saturday evening. Covers were arranged for six. Those present were Lieut. Burrell, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Waterhouse, Miss Harding, Miss Irma Ballentyne and Mr. David Anderson.

Mrs. Hitchcock's Tea.

The following invitations were received during the first part of the week:

To Meet Miss Dean
Mrs. D. Howard Hitchcock
At Home
from four to six. June the thirteenth, nineteen hundred and eleven.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Atherton's Dinner.

Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Charles Atherton entertained at an informal dinner, complimentary to Judge and Mrs. Selden Kingsbury.
